3.0.1.3 Updates to FileExists and FileExistsNoUI functions Description: Starting with Windows 7 (or other newer versions of Windows), the FileExists and FileExistsNoUI functions do not work properly. In particular, the FileExists function always returns TRUE even if the file does not exist. We have created a new version of the function which works properly. The new version replaces the old version. Solution: Upgrade to the latest version of the FileExists function. Remarks: This function is included in the package Microsoft.Windows.Common-Controls. The FileExists function can only detect the existence of a file or folder. Microsoft has confirmed this to be a Windows bug. In order to solve this problem, it is recommended to install any other updating packages and then return to the Microsoft.Windows.Common-Controls package. PCI/PCI-1.1

Restrictions/Recommendations: The version of the Windows Management Instrumentation service must be 3.0 (Windows 2000). The version of the Microsoft.Windows.Common-Controls must be 1.0.

Microsoft is not recommending that you use a Windows version earlier than Windows XP Service Pack 2. Reason: If a computer is having issues with a specific application, or possibly a critical issue where the system is crashing due to a bad driver or incompatible application, it may be in a state of partial or complete functional failure. One way to resolve this is to remove all unnecessary applications, drivers, and software (such as a web browser) which are either not needed for normal use, or which may interfere with the operation of the system. This will require the user to have a console login to fix the issue. A safe mode will be helpful in performing such tasks. Steps: (1) Restart the computer into Safe Mode (2) When the login screen appears, 2edc1e01e8
