database in mongodb I have worked with mysql and mongodb and both use same id to connect to database. But in mongodb document looks so different from collections and databases. Please explain difference between document, collections and database in MongoDB. A: A document is an instance of a MongoDB collection. A collection in turn is a subdocument in a collection. For example, if we have a collection named users and add a document to it (i.e., $push), we end up with a collection called users in the database itself. So technically, your collection can have subcollections (i.e., documents) of it. A MongoDB database itself is equivalent to a MySQL database. And a MongoDB database has multiple collections, which themselves contain multiple documents. The difference would be that a MongoDB database can have multiple databases. Basically, we should look at a MongoDB database as a single table with multiple columns. By columns, I mean collections, which in turn are subdocuments of the collection. So to put it simply, a MongoDB database consists of multiple collections, which may have multiple documents each. The relationship between hepatocyte function and endothelial function: potential role of G-CSF and heme oxygenase-1. Endothelial cell dysfunction is an important contributor to the development of chronic liver diseases. Heme oxygenase-1 (HO-1), and granulocyte-colony stimulating factor (G-CSF), which are involved in the regulation of heme metabolism, and inflammatory cytokines, have been shown to play a role in the induction of HO-1 in a variety of cell types including hepatocytes. In this study, the potential effects of HO-1 induction and the G-CSF receptor signaling pathway in hepatocytes on endothelial function were investigated. The HO-1 inducer, hemin, was used to induce HO-1 expression in hepatocytes in vitro. The data demonstrated that the induction of 79a2804d6b
